Former Marines Asked to Take Part in Online Survey Regarding Transition Back to Civilian Life

HQMC (MR) QUANTICO, VA – Headquarters Marine Corps is seeking feedback from Marines who have left the Service in the past four years regarding their transition from military to civilian life via an online survey that will run from 3-10 May, 2010.

This study will help Marine Corps leadership better understand and assess the needs of separated Marines and the challenges they face in civilian life. Respondents to the survey will help identify what assistance is needed and help shape services provided to transitioning Marines.

To participate in this web-based survey go to www.usmc-mccs.org/survey. For more information about the survey, please contact the research team at 703-784-9517 or futureoperations@usmc.mil.
